

Driven To Our Knees

Words and Music by Heather Schopf

You are pleased when we are driven to our knees.
You take delight when we are humble in Your sight.
Your Name is praised when Your children seek Your strength,
And You are glorified when we walk in the power of Your might.

We, like sheep, are quick to wander, quick to stray.
We soon forget about our need and fail to pray,
And every day that we draw from strength our own
We wander on a path leading far from the Shepherd, far from home.

But every moment holds the offer of Your grace.
For every weakness, You give power in its place,
And every prayer of the broken You will hear,
And to the ones who call on Your name You have promised to be near.

You, Who has no need of slumber, nor of sleep,
And You, Who never becomes weary, hear our plea:
“Oh, may we cease now from striving on our own,
Confessing that the source of our strength is in You and You alone.”

You are pleased when we are driven to our knees.
You take delight when we are humble in Your sight.
Your Name is praised when Your children seek Your strength,
And You are glorified when we walk in the power of Your might.
